UNITE FOR UNIVERSAL HEALTH COVERAGE: NOW IS THE TIME FOR COLLECTIVE ACTION

MEDIA COVERAGE REPORT
As of 18 December 2018
Overview

Led by UHC2030 and the multi-stakeholder UHC Day Coordinating Group, the fifth UHC Day exceeded the breadth and depth of engagement seen in years past. As the first UHC Day officially recognized by the United Nations as an international awareness day, the focus of this year’s 12.12 extended far beyond civil society engagement. This year’s momentum exceeded past measures of success, with more partner events, more country-level engagement and more creative content on social media. The coverage of UHC Day 2018 highlights its importance to diverse issue areas within global health and across countries and sectors. Action and conversation from this day is already propelling conversations about universal health coverage into related issue areas and generating momentum in the lead up to major milestones, including the UN General Assembly High-Level Meeting on UHC in September 2019.

Global Partner Events

Thanks in no small part to generous contributions from UHC2030 in the form of $90,000 in micro-grants for partner events, organizations across the globe were able to engage with UHC Day unprecedented ways. The resulting global partner events became an undeniable highlight of the day, as the UHC Day Coordinating Group (12.12.CG) received 435 grant applications by the end of October 2018. Of these, 12.12.CG selected 57 grantees from 34 countries, as well as 2 global youth network events, 1 regional youth network event and 3 online events, for the 2018 grants. These events facilitated global engagement at the community, national and international levels, and were a cornerstone of UHC activity. While some events followed traditional formats, such as high-level meetings and panels, many focused on community engagement through rallies, pop-up medical clinics, advocacy workshops, social media campaigning and more. Selective event highlights are below.
Ageing Nepal (Nagarjun Municipality, Nepal):
Ageing Nepal planned a weeklong campaign to promote UHC for marginalized populations, especially the elderly. Activities included a health camp, rally, awareness session, op-ed campaign and roundtable discussion.

All Together in Dignity (Dublin, Ireland):
All Together in Dignity’s UHC Day panel launched a series of educational workshops for young adults, focusing on the role of youth in supporting UHC reform in Ireland.

Bar Hostess Empowerment and Support Program (Nairobi County, Kenya):
Bar Hostess Empowerment and Support Program hosted a series of events, including a football tournament for adolescent girls and young women in the informal settlements of Nairobi, a concert, and a march. Their events aim to promote awareness of sexual and reproductive health rights.

Guyana Nurses Association (Georgetown, Guyana):
The Guyana Nurses Association organized a march with representatives from the Ministry of Public Health, PAHO/WHO, the Ministry of Education, the Ethnic Relations Commission, civil society organizations and health professionals, followed by a panel on working across sectors to increase access to health services.
Health, Education and Literacy Programme (Karachi, Pakistan):
Health, Education and Literacy Programme (HELP) hosted two events: an advocacy seminar for Pakistani media on UHC and a march to collect signatures on a petition to remind the government that it's time to deliver on UHC.

IFMSA Global Youth:
IFMSA hosted a "Hack for UHC Education!", a global hackathon to generate innovative ideas to advocate for the inclusion of UHC in medical and health school curricula.

Iniciar for Global Action (Argentina):
Iniciar for Global Action Foundation disseminated the conclusions of their second "Health for All Because Every Life Matters" meeting on social media. They also launched a Health for All magazine.

Journalists Association Against AIDS (Lilongwe, Malawi):
Journalists Association Against AIDS (JournAIDS) convened a high-level panel co-hosted by 12 partners, which was broadcast live on the radio with opportunities for people across Malawi to participate via text message. The panel focused on whether user fees are sustainable for health financing and universal health coverage.
DIGITAL/SOCIAL MEDIA

This year, the social media conversation in support of #UHC and #HealthForAll took place mainly on Twitter. However, large organizations such as WHO posted additional UHC messaging on Facebook as well. This section outlines topline Twitter analytics, government and UN engagement over social media, creative content available on UHCday.org, and content developed by partners around the world.

Social Analytics

- From 10 to 16 December, more than 24,900 people shared over 50,000 total tweets (tweets and retweets), reaching 59 million individual accounts and generating 895.7 million impressions.
- Throughout this period, most tweets were posted from Abuja, Nigeria; Nairobi, Kenya; Rajendra Nagar, India; New York, USA and New Delhi, India. Hashtags tracked were #HealthForAll, #UHCDay, #UHCDay2018, #UHC, #Unite4UHC, #PHC4UHC, and #UniversalHealthCoverage.
- As in past years, UHC Day itself marked the peak of social media engagement, with a 79% increase between 11 and 12 December. On 12 December alone, more than 8,000 people shared over 19K total tweets, which generated 379.2 million impressions.
- High-level influencers who were top Twitter contributors before, during and after UHC Day were the WHO (4.61 million followers), UN (10.7 million followers), World Bank (2.92 million followers) and Gates Foundation (1.9 million followers).
- Posts by WHO on UHC Day generated 1.8 million Twitter impressions, 545,000 Facebook impressions, 53,000 Instagram impressions and 337,000 LinkedIn impressions.
- Other top contributors included:
Top tweets included:

Government & UN Engagement

There was visible support for advancing UHC internationally from within the UN system and at the national level from governments. High-level officials who engaged included the Public Health Department in the Dominican Republic, National Health Agency in India, President of Kenya, State Governor in Nigeria, Department of Health in the Philippines, Department for International Development UK, France Mission to the UN, Hungarian Ambassador to the UN, Japan Mission to the UN, Swedish Mission to the UN, Thai Mission to the UN, UNGA President, IOM, PAHO/WHO, UNICEF and WHO Euro.

Creative Content

This year, as in previous years, UHCday.org was a central hub for partners to share event plans, download graphics and learn more about 12.12. The site provided guidance for getting involved, a full social media toolkit and an interactive map of more than 185 partner activities in 60 countries – a significant increase from the 160 UHC Day events in 45 countries recorded last year.

GLOBAL EVENTS

From 10 to 16 December, the site hosted 2,498 unique visitors, hailing from 143 countries. The top five countries by visit were the US, India, UK, Nigeria and Switzerland.

Partner Content

In addition to sharing content from the UHC Day toolkit, partners hosted their own Twitter chats on UHC and related topics, created their own videos, and shared original content to bring the Health for All movement to new audiences.

Original materials included sign boards, short videos from Cordaid, Communities at the Hearth of UHC/Living Goods, WHO Philippines and Devex, multiple interactive multimedia sites, quote graphics, publications, blog posts and animations. Partners seamlessly connected UHC to related issues, such as community health, finance, services for people with disabilities and primary health care.
TRADITIONAL MEDIA

- Even without the news and financial commitments generated by last year’s Tokyo Forum—which resulted in a surprisingly high amount of media coverage—the first International UHC Day garnered 174 pieces of media coverage as of 18 December.
- Leaders in health and development published more than 30 op-ed pieces spotlighting UHC Day, including high-profile voices such as Ban Ki-moon (Former Secretary-General of the UN), Diane Gashumba (Rwandan Minister of Health), Carin Jamtin (Director General of the Swedish International Development Agency), Githinji Gitahi (Global CEO and Director of AMREF Health Africa/Co-Chair, UHC2030) and Robert Yates (Project Director, UHC Policy Forum, Chatham House).
- Other notable op-eds appeared in Devex and The Economic Times.
- Partner events also drew media interest, including coverage in India, Nigeria, Tanzania and Thailand.
- The 19 press releases issued by partners about the day highlighted topics such as new country commitments to UHC, including commitments from India and Kenya.
- More than a dozen organizations wrote blog posts timed around 12 December, and five authors contributed to the “Health for All” Medium blog series.

NEW REPORTS

Organizations across issue areas released major reports timed to UHC Day. The Institute for Health Metrics and Evaluation (IHME) published a report in The Lancet on the funding and services needed to achieve UHC, which included national data on inpatient and outpatient visits and costs. The Primary Health Care Performance Initiative (PHCPI) also launched a 2018 report that presented seven case studies from five countries. The case studies demonstrated how data is being used to strengthen primary health care and accelerate progress toward universal health coverage. Other report launches included the Malaria Consortium’s report on community-based primary care as a mechanism for achieving UHC, an update by the NCD Alliance to their 2014 brief on NCDs and UHC, an RTI International report which identified UHC policy evaluation options in low- and middle-income countries, and a new World Innovation Summit for Health (WISH) report on the role of nursing and midwifery.
